New Governors And 1956

Editorial by Bruce Biossat

While public attention naturally focuses on the immediate national effects of the election, the fact is that developments at the state and district level may have a very substantial impact on the events of 1956, the next presidential year.

Most important would appear to be the capture by Democrats of eight governorships formerly held by Republicans. Democrats now hold 27 governorships against 21 in GOP hands.

Thirteen of these 27 are in the solid or border South, and for the most part would not likely figure in the presidential politics of 1956. But the other 14, including the eight just picked up this fall, are held in territory which is usually the real presidential battleground.

Control of the statehouse normally means control of the state's political machinery. Lubricated by the often smooth-tongued oils of patronage, this machinery can play a significant part in the nomination and election of a President.

Barring a reversal in New York through a recount, the Democrats now number among their statehouse prizes such politically potent states as New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan and Minnesota. Last year they picked off populous New Jersey.

Most of these states will go to the next Democratic convention with a fat block of delegates in their grasp. There seems little doubt they will call the turn on the party's presidential nominee. Significantly, Governor-elect Harriman of New York already has plumped for Adlai Stevenson, the 1952 choice.

Moreover, the organizational strength these statehouses may be expected to give the Democrats could prove a key factor in the 1956 fall combat against the GOP.

This does not mean that Democratic success this time at the state level presages Democratic capture of the White House next time. It just means that on paper the Democrats are better fixed for a fight.

Winning eight GOP-held governorships also will bring a good deal of new blood into Democratic ranks. Some of the winners may make reputations for themselves which will mark them as prospects for higher things. In the past, governorships many times have served as recruiting grounds both for the Senate and White House.

Conversely, the Republicans will have less of this material to pick from than they had after the 1952 elections, when they held 30 of the 48 statehouses.

But the GOP can find partial comfort in another direction: their surprising success in holding three of the four House seats they had won in 1952 in Virginia and North Carolina and taking one in Florida and another in Texas.

This is a very small bipartisan beachhead in the solid South, but it could be the first true sign of a change toward the two-party system there. The general feeling among many observers has been that President Eisenhower's huge southern vote in 1952 was a freakish storm which would leave no lasting marks. But apparently a very gentle but gradually steadier Republican wind is beginning to blow down South.

These southern results, plus the turn in the governorships, helped to make this one of the most fascinating of America's modern elections.

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND
By DREW PEARSON

DREW PEARSON Says: Amb. Bohan Resigns Because USA Reams; Diplomats Resent Humphrey's Plan For Wall Street Hand In LA Aid; Subversive Activities Control Board Trains Its Sights On Civil Rights Congress.

WASHINGTON—While the USA is worrying about Joe McCarthy and while Washington is more deluged with pro-McCarthy church lobbyists than at any time in years, an all-important backstage debate is going on regarding Latin America which could advance the cause of communism greatly.

In brief, Ambassador Merwin L. Bohan has resigned as U. S. ambassador to the Rio De Janeiro Economic Conference because that conference will be run by Wall Street, not for the good of Pan American cooperation.

The Rio De Janeiro Economic Conference, scheduled to open next week, was the bait held out by John Foster Dulles at the Caracas conference, when he got our Latin American friends to support the USA regarding Guatemala.

Great things would be accomplished at Rio, Dulles told the Latin Americans as an alibi for little happening at Caracas. Especially he held out the promise of big U. S. loans and economic aid.

But now Ambassador Bohan has resigned for the specific reason that no real economic aid or loans will be forthcoming.

What has happened, briefly, is this. For some time, Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey has argued that the United States should not advance money to Latin Americans but that they should borrow from the International Bank. This was one of the issues between Humphrey and Dr. Milton Eisenhower, Ike's brother, when the latter visited Latin America. And at that time Milton won. He kept the Export-Import Bank alive as a means of loaning money to Latin America.

However, brother Milton has gone back to Penn State College, while Secretary Humphrey remains on the job in Washington. In fact, he remains about the most powerful cabinet member in Ike's official family. Furthermore, Humphrey will be the top U. S. delegate to the Rio Economic Conference. Dulles, who was planning to go, is now worn out and will not go.

HARDEBOILED HUMPHREY

So Humphrey has put across the policy that loans will not be made by the Ex-Im Bank unless Wall Street, operating through the International Bank, turns them down.

State Department advisers don't entirely like the Humphrey policy. But they are very discreet in their opposition. After all, Humphrey is the most powerful member of the cabinet.

What they point out is that loaning money to Latin America is not a financial matter but a political one. In brief, we should not be loaning money to a semi-Communist country even if it's sound financially. On the other hand, we may want to loan money to a friendly country which needs help to throw off communism.

The State Department, not Wall Street bankers, is qualified to make this decision, the diplomats argue. And they are vigorously against turning this vital instrument of national policy over to the bankers, either Wall Street or any other group of bankers.

Meanwhile, Secretary Humphrey has proposed an "International Finance Corporation" which would undertake borderline loans to Latin America. However, Latin American finance ministers regard this as a nebulous promise for the future. They are definitely skeptical. At the same time, Latinos at the Rio conference are certain to remember how Prime Minister Mohammed Ali of Pakistan went home with a gift of $105,000,000, while Iran is getting about $240,000,000, and Egypt will get close to $100,000,000.

So the Latinos remark—rather bitterly—that perhaps they need to wave the Red flag a little. If they adopt just a little communism, argue some of the Latin diplomats, then they can collect all the money they want from the USA. But as long as they are friends they can collect only via the tough terms of Wall Street.

This is a story which doesn't make the headlines of the McCarthy censure motion. But it can cause as much more damage by Communist encroachment than McCarthy's "Communists" ever thought of doing.

WASHINGTON PIPELINE

While the Senate hubbub continues over Senator McCarthy, who has done little more than shout about the Communist conspiracy, the government's Subversive Activities Control Board quietly begins hearings today that should lead to the permanent crippling of a key Red front, the Civil Rights Congress. . . . The Civil Rights Congress for years has blown the propaganda horn for the Communist party. It is operated as the Red rescue squad but has never identified itself with the party. . . . Theophile Kammholz, Ike's appointee to the key post of general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board, is an old buddy of Sinclair Weeks, the Commerce secretary, who always has his big business finger in the President's labor decisions. Weeks picked Kammholz as the Commerce Department delegate to last year's International Labor Organization meeting. The fact that Weeks picked him for the NLRB isn't going to help Secretary Mitchell's resentment that Weeks meddles too much in Labor Department affairs. . . . Albert Beeson, the Eisenhower appointee to the National Labor Relations Board last year, whose evasiveness before the Senate Labor Committee led to full-scale floor fight over his nomination, has written Eisenhower stating that he does not want to be reappointed. He cites his wife's health as the reason. (Actually, his appointment would be turned down by a Democratic Senate.)

Roger Kyes, the former Secretary of Defense now back at General Motors, has employees at GM's home appliance division in Dayton complaining that he's conducting a reign of terror. . . . The public has raised such a ruckus over the colored stripes on the new tax forms that the color scheme will be abandoned next year. Tax Chief T. Coleman Andrews has been defending the system because he has already printed up so many tax returns that he is stuck with them. However, the color gives away the approximate amount of taxes your neighbor pays, and the plan will be junked.

LECTURER. The power of scientific Christianity to heal sickness and bring freedom from fear and other evils will be the topic of a public lecture to be delivered in Marion Thursday, Nov. 18, at 8 p. m. by John J. Selover of Long Beach, Calif. The lecture will be under the auspices of the First Church of Christ Scientist in Marion.

Contests Wayne County Election

FAIRFIELD, Ill. (U)—Robert W. Wilson, a Democrat who lost the election for Wayne county sheriff by six votes Nov. 2, Monday filed a petition contesting the election won by Republican Elmo Murrage. Wilson's petition in circuit court alleges that election judges in certain precincts failed to initial absentee ballots and that there were numerous cases of illegal voting.

The petition claims ballots were cast by minors and in some precincts by voters who were not residents of those precincts.

The petition said a recount of the ballots would show Wilson won by 100 votes.

Saline County Association Observes National Retarded Children's Week

The Saline County Association for Mentally Retarded Children is this week observing National Retarded Children's Week. In conjunction with this occasion Ray Graham of the Illinois Department of Education will be guest speaker at the Harrisburg Kiwanis club tonight. And on Saturday, Nov. 20, the Saline association will sponsor a "tag day" as a fund-raising project.

The commission, through Miss Jane Bull, executive director of the commission, immediately followed up this need, called a meeting for June 9, 1950. Representatives from six Illinois groups attended that first meeting and formed the Illinois Council for Mentally Retarded Children. At the meeting on August 4, 1950, two more groups that had been formed before but had not been able to attend the June meeting were recognized, making eight groups originally in the council.

In 1943 the school code of the state of Illinois was amended to include educable mentally handicapped children. This law was permissive, allowing local school districts to set up E. M. H. classes under the department of public instruction.

First Group Formed in 1948

In general, this included mentally retarded children in the 50 to 70 I. O. range. Trainable mentally handicapped children below this "educable mentally handicapped" category were excluded and no provision was made for them.

The parents of these trainable mentally retarded children, believing that some good could come to the children from group training or class room surrounding, banded together as "parent groups" and set up projects for the training of their children.

These projects were started and operated in various localities and under various circumstances—in a neighborhood house, church basements, private homes and park district field houses. The first such group formed in Illinois was Retarded Children's Education Project as Association House in Chicago in 1948. Other groups quickly sprang up throughout the state.

In May 1950, several persons active in the newly formed parent groups wrote to the Illinois Commission for Handicapped Children, suggesting the need for a statewide organization or a council of parent groups.

Army, Navy Cadets Forbidden to Debate On National Topic

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Naval Academy midshipmen and West Point cadets have been forbidden to debate whether the United States should recognize Red China, the national intercollegiate debate topic for this year.

Lt. Gen. Blackshear M. Bryan, superintendent of the military academy at West Point, N. Y., said Monday night it is against the policy of the Army to hold such a debate or discussion since national policy already has been decided on the question.

A spokesman said the decision also prohibits cadets to make public statements on the issue.

FLAIR STYLING FEATURED ON 1955 DODGE—The flair-styled 1955 Dodge features a dashing hood ornament, projected headlight hoods, "New Horizon" swept-around windshield, cut back doors, flared wheel openings and streamlined rear deck. This four-door sedan in the Custom Royal series has a Super Red Ram V-8 engine of 183 horsepower. Two-tone paint treatment accents the lowered roof line, sloping hood, and twin-jet taillight section. The new Dodge will be on display Wednesday at B. W. Rude Motor Co., local dealer.

New 1955 Dodge on Display Tomorrow With Aircraft Sleekness and Power

The new 1955 Dodge will be on display tomorrow at the B. W. Rude Motor Co., local dealer, when the new line, an advanced concept in automotive body design will be introduced in dealers' showrooms across the nation.

William C. Newberg, Dodge president, explained that car stylists have blended aircraft sleekness and power into a "design of refreshing beauty."

He revealed that Dodge engineers have incorporated over 100 structural and mechanical innovations in the longer, lower and wider 1955 line. He said all four-door sedans have a distinct touch of hardtop styling.

Offering three series—the new and luxurious Custom Royal, the richly appointed Royal and the Coronet—the '55 Dodge has a built-in look of action, resulting from its swept-back design.

Performance to bear out the air-slicing swiftness in styling is provided by a wide choice of engines—the "Get-Away Six" developing 123 horsepower, the all-new Red Ram V-8 rated at 175 horsepower, the Super Red Ram V-8 at 183 horsepower, and the super-powered Super Red Ram V-8 at 193 horsepower.

Newberg announced another automotive first for Dodge in the introduction of three-tone combinations on Dodge Lancer hardtop and convertible models. These multiple-tone paints accent the flair styling and permit new combinations in exterior color design.

From front to rear the 1955 Dodge conveys an impression of classic, clean-lined simplicity. A feeling of streamlined flight is embodied in the car from the twin-opening grille to the twin-jet taillights.

All 14 models have an increased wheelbase of 120 inches. Overall length is increased by as much as 16 inches on some models, but the cars appear even more lengthy due to Dodge's flair styling.

"New Horizon" windshields wrap around at both top and bottom of the glass for improved and safe vision. The windshield provides cockpit-like visibility for driver and front seat passengers.

Inside, the 1955 Dodge control panel can be compared to an airplane pilot's flight control panel. Dials are placed in a row before the driver and clustered under an "eyebrow" to reduce glare.

R. C. Somerville, Dodge vice president in charge of sales, pointed out that along with the new Dodge engines, the gear selector lever for PowerFlite transmission will share the spotlight as a major mechanical innovation.

The Flite control lever is mounted on the control panel. Conveniently located to the right of the steering wheel, the lever glides easily into each driving range.

Mother Held for Poisoning 2-Year-Old Daughter

EBENSBURG, Pa. (UPI)—Police held a mother of five children without bail today on a murder charge after she admitted feeding rat poison to her deformed 2-year-old daughter because the infant "cried all the time."

State police said Mrs. Eileen Bell, 28, was taken into custody Monday and admitted after two hours of questioning that she saturated a piece of bread with poison, put it under a sink and told her son Robert, 3, to give it to Ruth Ann last Wednesday. The girl died several hours later.

Mrs. Bell pleaded innocent to a formal charge of murder before Justice of the Peace Elizabeth Rowland and then was imprisoned in the same jail where her husband, William G. Bell, 27, awaited grand jury action for mistreating his son Robert.

Bell was arrested last Friday and accused of beating Robert with a stick, hanging him for four hours in an Army duffle bag suspended from a door and finally thrusting the boy's legs into a pan of scalding water. Police said Robert's legs were so badly scalded that "the skin peeled off like stockings." Bell was charged with assault and battery with intent to kill.

Two Killed While Stunting in Stolen Airplane

HOOPESTON, Ill. (AP) — Two men performing stunts in a stolen airplane were killed Monday when they crashed into a corn crib on a farm near here.

For about an hour before the crash the plane buzzed low over farm buildings along the Vermilion-Iroquois County line.

Owen Brown, 32, Cheneyville, died in the crash, and his companion, James Bivans, 26, Hoopston, died en route to a Danville hospital.

The plane crashed when one wing of the small plane clipped the roof of a corn crib on the Mark Alkire farm.

Iroquois County Sheriff Archie W. Krug said the plane was stolen from a small airport near Ross-ville.

Madness In The Spring

By Elinore Denniston

Copyright 1954 by Elinore Denniston. Distributed by NEA Service, Inc.

THE STORY: Greg Seaver, 26, leaves a relatively secure job working for his stepfather to become a chauffeur for Wade Daggett, a wealthy invalid. Daggett wants to see the country, realizing that he has not long to live. Greg wants to do something on his own. Back in Daggett's mind is a hope to see the western town where he was born. They have a trailer, and they are traveling not west, but northward through New England.

VIII

A few days later and a few hundred miles farther north, in Massachusetts, the night turned cold. Next morning there was a film of frost over the ground.

"No sense in freezing," Greg commented. "Let's drive south. Sensible tourists are probably still hibernating."

But from the moment he awakened, Daggett proved to be intractable. Later, Greg laid all that happened to Daggett's wayward mood that morning. If Greg had not had to argue with him about keeping warm, and finally bundle him into an overcoat almost by force, they would have been on their way long before the airplane came into view, a pinpoint of light that became a large bird and then circled lower and lower overhead.

"It's in trouble," Daggett said, shading his eyes as he peered up at the sky. "It's making a forced landing."

The old man was cold and Greg tried to hurry him into the car where the heater would warm him. "The motors sound all right to me. Come on." He put his hand on Daggett's arm but the latter was in a rebellious mood and shook it off. He was not to be badgered.

"It is landing," he said, triumphantly. The plane came lower, the wheels touched, bumped over the uneven ground, and rolled to a stop. Even Greg had forgotten his hurry now. Something queer was happening. A man got out of the plane and began to stagger away without looking back. With a roar of its powerful motors, the plane taxied across the field and rose almost over the heads of the two watchers. It circled the field once before winging its way north.

"That's a phony set-up," Greg commented. "Not a town in sight. Looks like a smuggling job to me. Hadn't you better get into the car now?"

But Daggett continued to be unreasonable. "I am curious," he retorted, "and you might as well stop tugging at my arm. I am not going until I know what that man is up to."

He did not seem to be up to anything. He was slightly built, hatless, without an overcoat. He turned up the collar of his jacket, tried futilely to pull it together, and thrust his hands into his pockets. As he walked he lurched from side to side.

"He is either injured or ill," Daggett exclaimed, and as he spoke the man sat down abruptly on the ground, his head falling forward on his chest.

Greg wanted no part of it. Anyhow, it was no concern of his. The sensible thing to do was to keep hands off—strictly. But Daggett was obviously not in a sensible mood, so he capitulated.

"I'll take a look. You get back in the trailer."

"I'm coming with you."

"Oh, no, you're not," Greg grinned to himself. I sound like Florence Nightingale, he thought in amusement. "In the first place, you can't walk over that field. In the second place, you don't know what is wrong with the guy."

As a result of Greg's well-meaning ministrations, Daggett was so bundled up that only the tip of his nose and one plump cheek were visible.

"I'm coming," Daggett repeated with infuriating obstinacy.

"Says you," Greg opened the door of the trailer, picked Daggett up and carried him inside. He set him down, panting from the effort, because Daggett was a heavy man. "You stay put until I get back."

He went quickly across the field, feeling the cold through the soles of his shoes. The stranger did not look up as Greg approached though he must have heard the footsteps ringing over the frozen ground. His head was still bowed on his chest and Greg noticed that he had thick black hair worn rather long. He bent over and shook the man who raised his head and tried to focus his eyes.

"Get up," Greg said. The man shook his head as though trying to clear it and his eyes closed again. Greg looked at him in perplexity. "Come on." He hoisted the man to his feet. "You can't stay here. You'll freeze."

The man sagged against him and then reached for a non-existent hat, swept a low bow, lost his balance and fell sprawling to the ground. Greg got one of the limp arms over his shoulder and started toward the trailer. Compared with Daggett's solid bulk and cushioned fat, this fellow was all bone. Greg could feel the sharp shoulder-blades, the bones of the arm.

Peering out of the window, his nose pressed against the glass, Daggett watched their erratic progress, which advanced like a comic dance, moving from side to side rather than forward. He gestured eagerly for Greg to bring the fellow in.

Greg smothered a grin. The old boy was afraid he was going to miss something. He stumbled up the steps of the trailer and eased his burden onto the davenport where he promptly rolled over on his side and fell asleep.

"Well, how do you like that?" Greg was torn between amusement and irritation. "There's nothing like making yourself at home."

"What's wrong with him?" Daggett demanded.

"Stunko," Greg said succinctly. (To Be Continued)

Seven Killed In Auto Crash

LILLINGTON, N. C. (AP) — Seven persons, including five members of one family, were killed today when two cars crashed head-on at the crest of a hill near here.

A Negro soldier, driving alone, roared toward the crest of the hill on the wrong side of the highway, according to police, and slammed into the other car which was occupied by eight persons.

The accident happened within 50 feet of a spot where four persons were killed last March five miles south of her on Highway 210.

Completely new gasoline gives extra mileage in your everyday driving

Now—Gulf refines out the "dirty-burning tail-end" of gasoline—the No.1 trouble-maker in high-compression engines. Then Gulf specially blends new Super-Refined No-Nox for top economy in the kind of driving motorists do most.

The "gunk" that takes the "go" out of your engine! That tar-like, gummy residue is what's left after evaporating a single gallon of the "dirty-burning tail-end" of gasoline... the part that Gulf refines out in making new Super-Refined

NO-NOX. There's at least that much "dirty-burning tail-end" in a tankful of ordinary gasoline! This material, when deposited in your engine, is harmful to engine parts, impairs their performance, leads to costly overhauls.

See the difference Gulf super-refining makes: Instead of trying to fight harmful deposits with so-called "miracle additives"—inside your engine—Gulf believes in preventing them from forming in the first place, removes the cause—the "dirty-burning tail-end"—at the refinery. Just look at the plates in the unretouched photo at left and see what a difference Gulf super-refining makes!

What's more, besides giving your engine more complete protection, new Super-Refined GULF NO-NOX gives you extra gas mileage in the short-trip, stop-and-go driving motorists do most... no knock, no pre-ignition... stall-proof smoothness... plus instant starts and fast, fuel-saving warm-up.

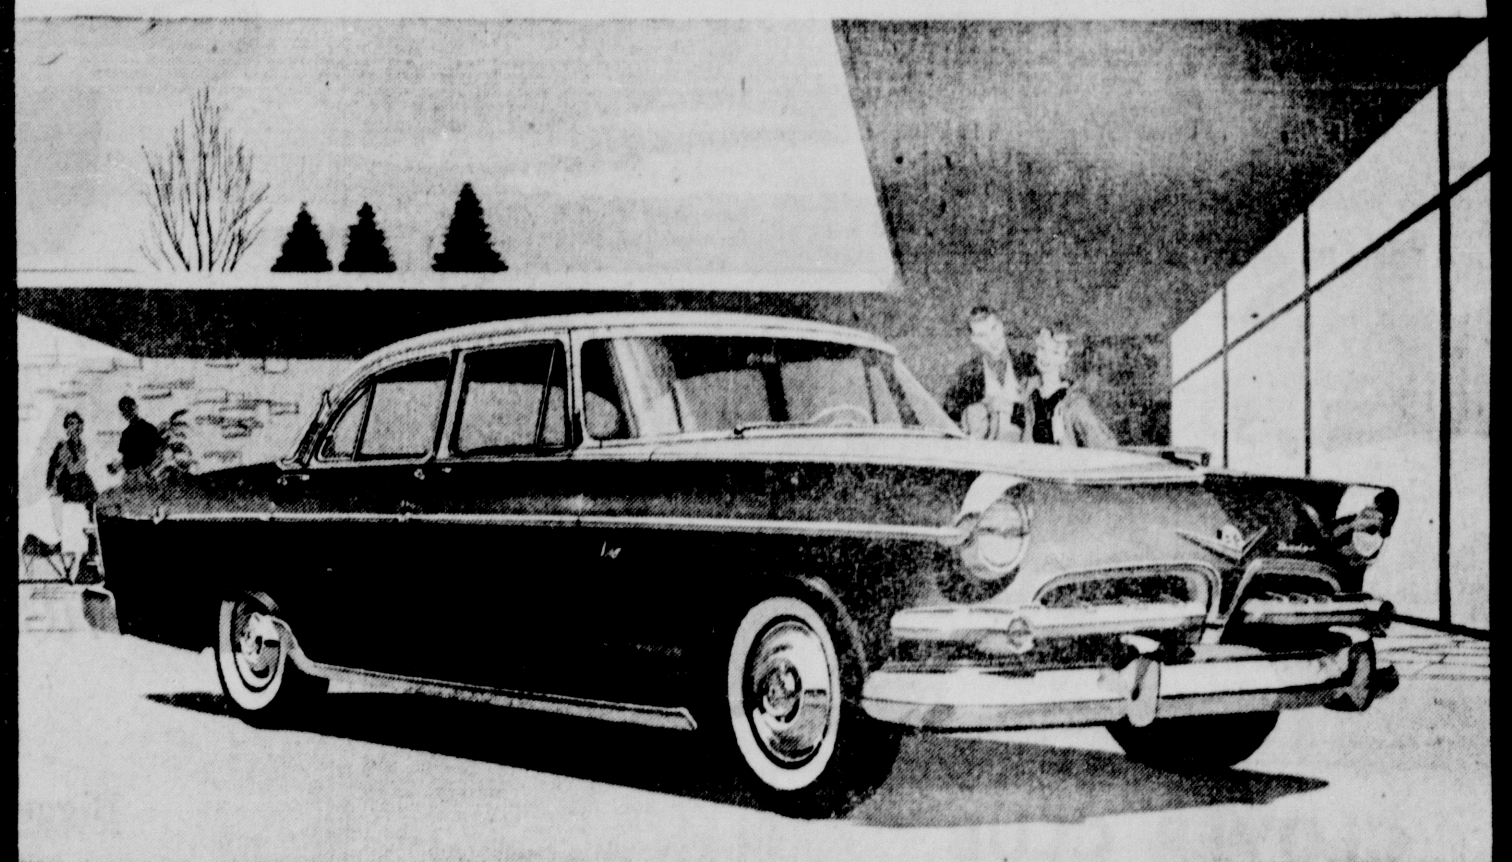

COMPLETELY NEW! SUPER-REFINED

New Gulf No-Nox

Stevenson's Son, Borden, to Report For Induction

CHICAGO (U)—Borden Stevenson, second son of Adlai Stevenson, was fast asleep in Chicago at 11 a. m. today and his mother would not wake him because he's going into the Army Wednesday.

"It's his last chance to sleep," said Mrs. Ellen Borden Stevenson, "and I'm going to see that he gets it."

Mrs. Stevenson said she did not see how it would have been possible for her son to have been in Washington, D. C., early today where a man identifying himself as Borden Stevenson was arrested for speeding.

"He came in late," Mrs. Stevenson said. "When he gets up, I'll ask him. At 7 o'clock tomorrow morning, he reports for induction. He deserves to sleep."

Borden was resting at his mother's apartment on the Near North Side's exclusive Astor Street.

Originally he had been scheduled to be drafted from Springfield, his address while his father was governor of Illinois. However, Selective Service officials here said on Nov. 9 he asked for a transfer to the Chicago jurisdiction.

UCLA, Ohio State and Oklahoma Top Grid Teams; Arkansas Drops to 10th

NEW YORK (AP)—UCLA, which took last weekend off to rest up for its big objective game, lost some ground to Ohio State in the race for the national college football championship, but topped the United Press ratings today for the fourth week in a row.

Southern Methodist's surprise victory which dumped Arkansas from the perfect record ranks brought about the major change in this week's top 10 teams. The Mustangs vaulted to ninth place and dropped Arkansas from fourth to 10th.

Twenty-three of the 25 leading coaches who make up the United Press rating board selected UCLA tops in the nation. Nine coaches voted for Ohio State and three for Oklahoma. All three teams have won eight straight games.

Breaking the balloting down to points, UCLA had 333 out of a possible 350 total, the Buckeyes had 320 and Oklahoma 278. The powerful Bruins from the Pacific Coast conference thus attracted three less first-place votes and five less points than last week. And their margin over Ohio State was narrowed from 28 to 13 points.

Seek Perfect Year

Coach Henry (Red) Sanders' men next Saturday seek to complete the first perfect season in UCLA's football history when they meet sixth-ranked Southern California in a PCC showdown which shapes up as the No. 1 game on the weekend program.

Even if they win, the Bruins are not eligible for the Rose Bowl because they participated last New Year's Day. Southern California, which also is unbeaten in conference play, is almost certain to get the bowl bid no matter what the outcome of the UCLA clash.

Arkansas' fall also gave Notre Dame, Army, Southern California and Navy a chance to move higher. Notre Dame, Army and the Trojans each moved up one notch to fill the fourth, fifth and sixth rankings. Navy vaulted three places to seventh place. Mississippi, a top Sugar or Cotton Bowl contender, retained eighth, followed by SMU and Arkansas.

SMU Moves Up

Southern Methodist, now prominent in the Cotton Bowl picture, moved all the way up from a tie for 15th place last week to emerge among the top 10 for the first time this season. The Mustangs advanced among the top 10 at the expense of Iowa, which fell from ninth to a tie for 15th.

Michigan, which plays Ohio State next Saturday in a game that should determine the Big Ten representative in the Rose Bowl jumped from 20th to 11th place atop the second 10 group. Minnesota, Wisconsin and Georgia Tech came next in order, followed by three two-team ties, Iowa and Miami, Fla., were tied for the 15th ranking, Maryland and Wichita for 17th and Baylor and Auburn for 19th.

West Virginia, Penn State and Cincinnati were the only other teams that received points in this week's ratings.

The main section of the courthouse at Waterloo was built in 1851 at a cost of $8,000. (SIU)

White Sox, Yankees Discuss Trades

CHICAGO (AP)—Frank Lane, general manager of the Chicago White Sox, said Monday that he is "very close" to making a player swap with the New York Yankees.

Lane hinted the deal may be closed this Saturday when he meets for a second time with George Weiss, Yankee general manager.

Neither Lane nor the Yankees would say which players were involved in the deal, but the Chicago general manager said the swap could give the White Sox an "outfielder, one of the Yanks' rookie catchers and perhaps a young pitcher."

Speculation in New York centered on Gene Woodling as the Yankee outfielder and Elston Howard, Negro catcher who played in the International league last year.

Lane said "The baseball commissioner has put on a gag against the naming of players being discussed in possible deals. Every once in a while I get a letter from him suggesting I keep my mouth shut."

To Name Field Manager for Kansas City A's

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)—Owner Arnold Johnson and newly named business manager Parke Carroll today started to do "a year's work in five months" to get the Kansas City Athletics ready for major league competition.

Johnson named Carroll, a former newspaperman with a long career as manager in Triple-A baseball, as vice president and business manager of the former Philadelphia team Monday.

He said he would pick a field manager soon, possibly Wednesday.

Asked who the leading candidates were, he was non-committal. "We have several men under consideration," he said. "I've read a lot about Lou Boudreau, former Boston Red Sox manager, being a strong candidate, but there are others, too."

He said Eddie Joost, who piloted the Philadelphia Athletics last season, was still in the running for the post.

Johnson arrived in Kansas City from his home in Chicago Sunday night. His purchase of the Athletics franchise necessitated the sale and lease of Blues Stadium here and getting it ready for major league baseball.

"We've got a year's work to do in five months," he said.

Carroll, 50-year-old former sports editor of the old Kansas City Journal, which folded in 1942, has been general manager of the Kansas City Blues, a New York Yankee club here, since 1950. He moved from Triple-A to major league baseball without having to leave his office. He had earlier served

Winchester Back Wins Illinois Prep Grid Scoring Title

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—Halfback Pat Lashmet of Winchester today was apparent winner of the 1954 Illinois prep football scoring crown.

Though he was held scoreless in his final game against Pittsfield Friday, Lashmet wound up with 135 points—seven better than his closest rival for individual scoring honors.

Dave Arnold, quarterback for Charleston, Eastern, tallied seven points against Casey last week to wind up in second with 128. Maccomb's Dick Leatherwood completed play with 123 markers.

A sensational finish by Lem Clark of Chenoa put him above Chatsworth's Dave McKinley in the scoring race. Clark got 25 points against Fairbury for a 117-point total, topping McKinley's 116.

Al Sonneberg, Collinsville, finished with a touchdown against Belleville and a season total of 109 points.

What's happened to the brakes on trains?

TEXAS EASTERN SERVES THE COMPANIES THAT SERVE YOU

Disc brake assembly being heat-treated for stress relief with gas at 1200°F. Gas is supplied the Budd Company by the Philadelphia Gas Works, a customer of Texas Eastern.

Stopping a train used to be a noisy, jerky business. But if you've ridden one of today's really modern trains you know how smooth and quiet even quick stops can be. That's because, after years of research, the Budd Company developed a new way to stop an 80-ton railroad car. In the Budd design, air-actuated brake shoes apply pressure to a disc attached to the wheel, instead of the wheel itself. This protects the wheel and improves the braking action. Vital to Budd's new disc brake is the heat treatment of steel parts in gas-fired furnaces. Gas is used at Budd because it is economical, flexible and is capable of producing high temperatures. The Texas Eastern system makes available a dependable, long range supply of natural gas to industries and homes in its service area.
